There are many challenges Nebraskans will face during these next few months in response to the novel coronavirus. As students are asked to continue learning from home, affordable broadband connectivity has become even more vital. The Commission applauds those carriers that have already stepped up to provide free connectivity during this crisis and encourages other carriers to do so as well.

Historically, the Commission has made support available through its Broadband Adoption program for pilot projects finding that universal service support should be used to assist low-income subscribers in obtaining affordable access to broadband services in their homes. We find it necessary and appropriate to do so again by making support available on a temporary basis to ensure that consumers have access to critical services and students can continue to learn in at-home environments.

Accordingly, the Commission allocates $1 million for reimbursement of broadband adoption projects designed to provide free or reduced broadband services to low-income consumers where needed to facilitate online learning. This broadband adoption support will apply only to new lines of service for low-income families added after March 15. Support will be made available for services provided beginning March 15 and through the end of May, 2020. Any telecommunications carrier which holds a certificate as a local exchange carrier or is registered with the Commission as a communications provider may file an application seeking NUSF adoption support as of May 1. Applications must include the names and addresses for the households for which reimbursement is being requested, the total number of households supported, retail pricing information, a service area description, the proposed discounted rate, broadband speed packages available, and the requested grant amount. Applicants must certify that the subscribers qualify as low income based on a household income at 135% or less than the federal poverty guidelines based on your household size and state; or through participation in one of the following programs: 1) Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), formerly known as Food Stamps; 2) Medicaid; 3) Supplemental Security Income (SSI); 4) Federal Public Housing Assistance (FPHA); or 5) Veterans Pension and
